The following information is based on the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association 2009, 6th edition. This manual has a call number of Ref. PN 147 .A5 2010 and can be found on the Reference shelves.

The following examples represent some of the more common citations requested at Delta College Library. The new rules in the 2009 edition leave room for interpretation. Examples on how to cite some of these sources can vary per institution. When in doubt, please access the Publication Manual, the official APA website, the Teaching/ Learning Center, the WRIT Center, the Librarians, or better yet, your instructor. The final authority on the proper way to cite is your teacher.

Citing Web Pages in APA Format

Definitely, the APA rules are open to interpretation when it comes to citing websites, web pages, articles, and “documents” on a specific web page or website. The following examples represent examples from credible sources on how to cite web pages according to the 2009, 6th edition Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association.

PLEASE remember that your TEACHER is the final authority on how the source should be cited.

The following excerpt from the APA’s website states that “Articles found on the web are not italicized in the reference entry and are not italicized but enclosed in quotations in the in-text citation, just like a newspaper or magazine article. Reports found on the web would be italicized in the reference list, as in Publication Manual (6th ed.) Examples 31, 32, and 33 on pp. 205–206. They would also be italicized in the in-text citation, just like a book.”
